The EduTools site has been re-launched as a community-driven site, beginning with the Course Management System (CMS) site. Just like the original EduTools site, we continue to offer feature-by-feature product comparisons and decision-making supports. In addition, the site now includes the ability for any user to submit reviews for new products that haven't already been reviewed or to add their own feedback as to how well specific products have implemented various features.

EduTools strives to be the best place to find and share information about Course Management Systems and other products in the future. We can only do that with the help and involvement of the larger community. These changes will allow us to keep the site information as up-to-date, as possible. The site will continue to have the direct involvement of the product vendors, but will add the ability of the community to comment on and discuss the reviews, including a dispute resolution procedure to assure the accuracy of information on the site.

The old EduTools CMS site will continue to be available as an archive. You can also request to be notified of discussion updates by RSS.

eLearning In Malaysia

Besides reading the latest research papers and news about in e-learning in Malaysia, it is also critical that we reflect past e-learning adventures, implementations, experiences and findings, so that we can learn from them. Below is a compilation of interesting Malaysian e-Learning stories (research papers, reports, articles, etc.) that I have discovered. The discovered e-Learning stories are organized according to chronological order, starting with the latest year first (e.g. 2007). Also keep in mind that some of the links (URLs) in this list might be changed or deleted over time (Beyond my control!). However, should this be the case, you are recommended to 'Google' and quote ("title") the paper's title (e.g. "e-Learning in Malaysia"), and hopefully you will find it somewhere else on the WWW. If you have any suggestions, I will be glad to read and add. Hopefully, the list will grow quickly as I learn. If you are doing research, or want to know more about e-learning in Malaysia, this growing list might be a good starting point (Gold mine!) :

"69 Learning Adventures in 6 Galaxies"

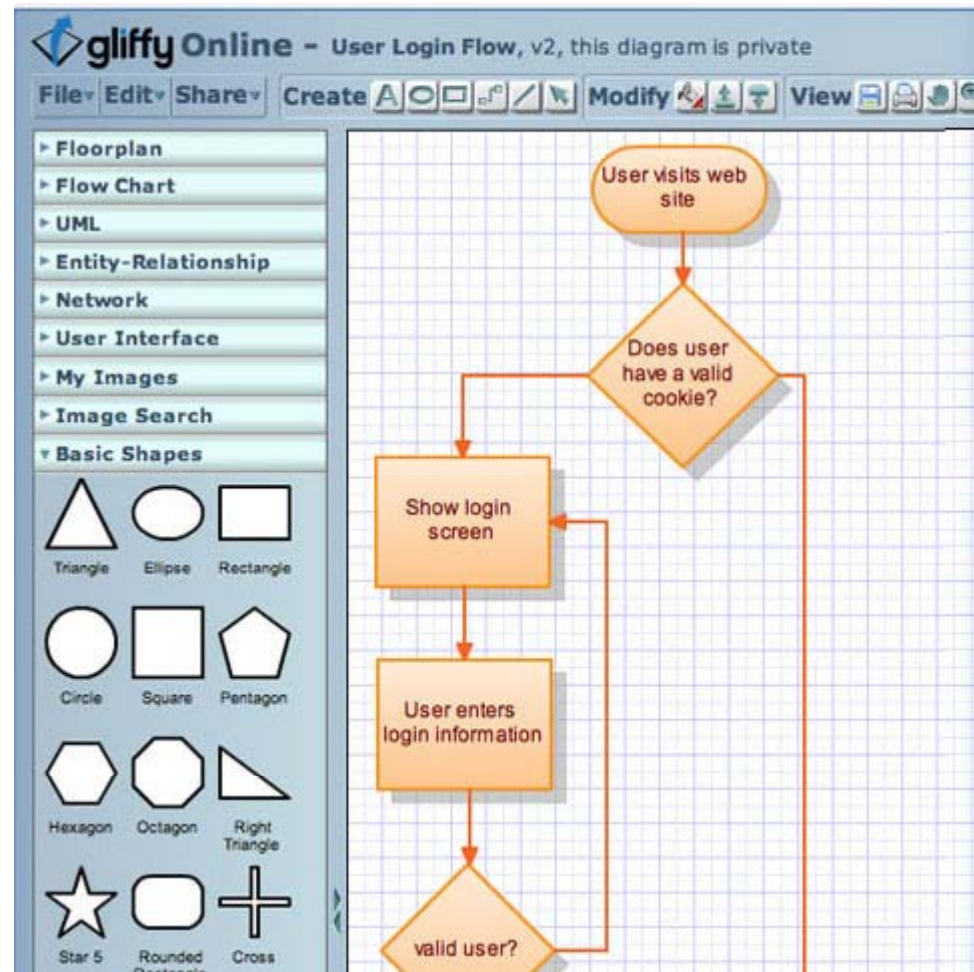

At the beginning of 2007, I sat down to have a discussion with myself about what I wanted to achieve (working and academic wise) by the end of 2008. By the end of this self-reflective discussion I had managed to draft two hedgehog goals to achieve. The first hedgehog goal was to write a book about learning (by July 2008), and the second one was to start my PhD adventure (by December 2008).

As I was approaching July 2007, I realized that my book and PhD aspirations were getting nowhere. So, to get the ball rolling I started to blog about learning (ZaidLearn) on July 18th, 2007. Since then (until August 6th, 2008) I have posted exactly 300 articles or learning nuggets on the blog. The first 128 learning nuggets were imported from my past (failed) learning adventures (including an e-Learning Community Portal). In other words, since I started last year I have posted 172 new learning nuggets. The length of each learning nugget has varied from a whopping 5000 words to a few hundred.

The main content area is titled 'Full Web Building Tutorials - All Free' and states 'At W3Schools you will find all the Web-building tutorials you need, from basic HTML and XHTML to advanced XML, SQL, Database, Multimedia and WAP.' It instructs users to 'Select your tutorial from the menu on the left!'. A sidebar on the left lists 'HTML Tutorials' (Learn HTML, XHTML, CSS, TCP/IP) and 'XML Tutorials' (Learn XML, DTD, XML DOM, XSL, XSLT, XSL-FO, XPath, XQuery, XLink, XPointer, Schema, XForms, SOAP, WSDL, RDF, RSS, WAP, Web Services). The right sidebar contains a 'SITE SEARCH' box, 'About W3Schools' and 'W3Schools Forum' links, a 'REFERENCES' list (HTML 4.01, XHTML 1.0, CSS 2.0, JavaScript, HTML DOM, XML DOM, PHP 5.1, XSLT 1.0, XPath 2.0, XSL-FO, WML 1.1, HTML Colors), and 'CHARACTER SETS' (HTML ASCII, HTML Latin-1, HTML Symbols). A 'Full Web Building References' section explains that references cover all Web-building technologies, including W3C standards like HTML, XHTML, CSS, XML and others like JavaScript, PHP, ASP, SQL and more. A 'Try-it-Yourself On-Line Examples' section states 'At W3Schools you will find thousands of cut-and-paste'.
